

Schizophrenia Hurts the Parents Too

By JOHN HORGAN
"Generally, the hardest time for me is at night. I can't sleep even with heavy medication and so I usually end up walking the streets to ease some tension."

For the schizophrenic woman who is talking, every day is a form of personal hell.

At the age of 22, she has been in and out of state, local and private mental health facilities since 1966.

Her case is one of 15 compiled by Eve Oliphant, president of Parents of Adult Schizophrenics of San Mateo County.

All of these cases indicate that San Mateo County is failing rather markedly in its handling of adult schizophrenics.

The allegation made earlier this month by a graduate student in Berkeley that, during one period studied, the county failed to treat 59 per cent of the patients released by state mental hospitals back into this area does not surprise the members of the six-month-old organization.

According to Mrs. Oliphant, the 15 specific cases she has assembled show that the county does not adequately treat those adults who are afflicted with schizophrenia, a mental disorder which is characterized by crippling changes in perception, moods, thought patterns and behavior. The disease strikes most often among young people between the ages of 16 and 30. It has been estimated that one fourth of all hospital beds in America are occupied by schizophrenics.

Mrs. Oliphant, who lives in San Carlos, is the parent of a schizophrenic youngster herself.

"You can't image what this (the affliction) can do to a family," she says.

A major concern of the parents' group is that this county — like others in California — has not adjusted to the state's phase-out of many mental hospitals over the last several years. The burden of treatment and care for the seriously ill has fallen on the counties. And nearly everyone connected with health care here agrees that the county has not been able to pick up the slack.

A Grand Jury report issued more than a year ago detailed a list of suggested changes which should be implemented to improve care for the mentally ill and, unfortunately, the most important ones have not been put into effect.

Mrs. Oliphant's group has begun a campaign to alert the county to its needs and to urge county officials to act on upgrading its care for its chronic mental patients.

The organization has made up a list of recommendations which has been submitted to the county's Mental Health Advisory Board. Here are some of the highlights:

- The community should have access to a 24-hour crisis care service available to families and to board and care homes where many of the region's psychotic persons live.

- A long-term facility should be available in this county. This is also a high priority item in last year's grand jury list.

- More and better board and care homes should be available in this county.

These are issues which have been brought out before. They are not new. But Mrs. Oliphant and others like her have come to the conclusion that so little has been done to accomplish improvements that they must now take their case to the public.

Says Mrs. Oliphant, "San Mateo County's mental health program is riding along on past laurels as a model program for which it no longer qualifies."

She adds that she has the documented evidence to back up that claim.

She cites examples like these:

- A local schizophrenic who could not find a place to live was forced to pretend he was an alcoholic in order to get living quarters at an

STEEL MAN

Richardo Basquez, 94, handled his last load of steel bars last Friday, when he retired from the Bethlehem Steel Company's South San Francisco plant.

They Never Thought He'd Work So Long

By JACK BIR

There was an unusual side to the retirement party for Ricardo Basquez last week-end at the South San Francisco United Steelworkers Local 1069 hall.

Basquez is retiring after 31 years at the South San Francisco plant of Bethlehem Steel Co., not an unusual occurrence. Except that Basquez did not go to work for Bethlehem until he was 63 years old.

Nearing his 95th birthday, Basquez has been complaining of some arthritis in his legs and has decided he is old enough to retire.

Sporting a handlebar mustache, he still stands and walks erect, has few wrinkles, and appears more in his late fifties or early sixties than in the nineties. As his many descendants gathered around him during Friday's festivities, he appeared happy, especially when he was holding in his arms one of his baby great-grandchildren.

Eight of his 14 children are still living. He says he does not know exactly how many descendants he does have; many of them were there Friday.

Basquez was born in Salavatierra, Mexico, in 1880 and came to the United States at the age of 39. He worked in the fields, at first, migrating as far north as Montana, where he farmed sugar beets. In 1943, he and his family came to South San Francisco where — after 40 years of farming — he went to work for Bethlehem as a crane hook-tender.

This strenuous work resulted in a back injury which, for a while, looked as if it would disable him permanently. In the ensuing settlement, he agreed to a lesser sum if Bethlehem agreed to hire him for as long as he wished to work. At his age, he did not seem to be asking for much.

Bethlehem never was given any cause for regretting the settlement. Basquez was given the less strenuous job of straightening machine helper, which still requires ability. In December of 1972, he handled a record 8,600 bars in an eight-hour shift.

Basquez' English is limited and he needs a translator in talking to a monolingual American.

Basquez has no prescription for the long and active life.

"The Lord has been good to me," his son translates his explanation. And he never worries.

Basquez' retirement does not become official until February. He says he is looking forward to relaxing at his home on First Lane in South San Francisco.

SF Water Rate Hike Blocked

San Francisco cannot raise the water rates for Peninsula residents by a higher margin than for San Francisco residents, a federal judge ruled Monday.

U.S. District Court Judge Lloyd Burke granted a preliminary injunction sought by several Peninsula cities against the discriminatory water rate hikes.

The San Francisco Board of Supervisors had intended to raise water bills for suburban users by 20.5 per cent, while raising water rates for San Francisco residents by only 14.5 per cent.

The San Francisco board's action prompted heavy criticism from Peninsula residents. Several suburban cities filed suit Sept. 18 to stop the water rate hikes.

The suit claims that under a 1934 agreement, San Francisco is not entitled to profit on the sale of water from its Hetch Hetchy facilities. The 1913 Raker Act provided that a municipality obtaining water from federal lands may not resell it at a profit.

Although Judge Burke granted the preliminary injunction, he noted that it was "obvious a rate increase is necessary." The federal judge suggested that a 17.4 per cent across the board increase be adopted for both suburban and San Francisco residents.

The 17.4 per cent water

Shooting Victim Still Critical

Daly City police detectives today are continuing their investigation into the Sept. 23 shooting of two youths on the Jefferson High School athletic field.

Hospital sources listed Dennis Spooner, 16, as still "critical" after surgery. He was shot once in the head.

The other victim, Martin Guillory, also 16, remained in "stable" condition at Kaiser Hospital, South San Francisco. Guillory suffered five gunshot wounds in the stomach and lower body.

Another 16-year-old is being held at Hillcrest Juvenile Hall, charged with assault with intent to commit murder. A police source said the youth is maintaining his innocence in the incident.

Willard Oates, director of the juvenile probation department, said a hearing on the charge will be held Oct. 16.

A second youth taken into custody at the same time was released, police said.

Harry Lax, a Daly City police detective assigned to the case, said the suspect apparently had been at odds in the past with one of Spooner's brothers, and the feud carried over to the victim, as he and his companion Guillory walked across the Jefferson football field at about 7:45 p.m. Monday.

DC Man Wounded In Family Dispute

John Williams, 42, of 11 Royce Way, Daly City, is in critical condition in Mary's Help Hospital after being shot twice Sunday night. Daly City police report.

His wife, Esterlene Williams, 36, was arrested on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder, according to Daly City police.

Officers said that investigation disclosed that the shooting followed a family dispute. They believe that a .25 caliber automatic revolver was used.

Police said they received a telephone call from Mrs. Williams notifying them of the shooting. The victim suffered gunshot wounds behind his right shoulder and in his lower stomach. One bullet pierced the liver, police said.

The father of the youth still being held was in the car, apparently unaware of the shootings, police said.

Blood splashes indicated the victims had run over several areas of the field, as well as in the bleachers, before Guillory finally was able to reach the Jefferson High School office, according to Lax.

Police apprehended two youths about 1½ hours later on D Street, in adjacent Colma, where one of the youths resided.

WHATCHA GOT THERE, FELLA?

San Mateo County Sheriff John R. McDonald never promised a rose garden. Would you believe? Yep, it's marijuana, and some 40 small plants were found growing in a planting area in front of the sheriff's patrol car parking area in front of the Hall of Justice Friday. It's the second time marijuana plants have been found — and quickly yanked by members of the sheriff's crime lab.

Berkeley Couple Held On Assault Charge

A Berkeley couple was arrested Monday on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon after a Daly City stabbing.

In custody are Wayne Gilbert, 24, and Betty Ann Gilbert, 21.

The stabbing culminated a motorists' argument between the Gilberts and Lester L. Lemons at the intersection of Mission Street and San Jose Avenue, according to police. Officers responding to the scene found Lemons with stab wounds on his arm and head. He was rushed to Mary's Help hospital, where he was treated, but not admitted.

Police traced the car operated by the other persons in the dispute to a San Bruno auto dealer. The suspects had left the dealership before police arrived, but South San Francisco Officer Charles Zetterholm later arrested the couple on El Camino Real. A 21-month-old child in the Gilberts' car was turned over to the mother's relatives.

Papan in Race to Repeal Pension Law

Assemblyman Louis J. Papan, D-Daly City, is in the running to see who can introduce the toughest legislative pension repeal bill in the state legislature during the special session that began Wednesday.

Papan's bill was one of eight on the subject put into the Assembly hopper Wednesday and could be one of the toughest because it not only would end the $5.7 million in "retirement bonanzas" for legislators so loudly denounced recently but would revise pension benefits sharply downward for Governor Ronald Reagan and eliminate them entirely for Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, the latter recently convicted of perjury.

"Everyone has been digging into this and something new is coming out every day about this pension business," Papan's administrative assistant, Don Fields, said from Sacramento Thursday.

Both Reagan and Reinecke will end their terms after their successors are elected in November. Reinecke possibly earlier because of his conviction.

The retirement pension flap started a few weeks ago when it was learned that legislation had been passed allowing sizeable early pension benefits to 61 state legislators displaced by legislative reapportionment. Six of these affected, including former Assembly Majority Leader Walter Karabian, 36, are under 40.

Papan's bill would:

- Eliminate immediate retirement pensions for legislators who leave office during the present reapportionment year.

- Eliminate the "vesting rights" for legislators elected prior to 1969 who did not leave office this year but announced their intentions to retire at some undetermined future date "because of reapportionment";

- Eliminate a cost of living factor and other special conditions which would more than double Reagan's pension benefits and those of other constitutional officers;

- Repeal a section of the constitutional officers retirement law which permits a convicted felon to draw a pension "unless a fugitive from justice";

- Would permit partial pension benefits immediately for the widows and orphans of legislators who die before age 60 — if the lawmaker is otherwise entitled to draw retirement benefits.

Papan said that under current law Reagan would draw a "base" pension of $19,640, or 40 per cent of his present salary, per year. But the governor would add to this the cost of living increase since 1964 — a total of 75 per cent or more — giving him an immediate retirement increase to $36,230 per year.

The governor also has permitted himself and other constitutional officers to establish their "base" on the highest salary of future officeholders, Papan said.

So, if the next governor is given a raise his salary is used to compute the "base."

The cost of living factor, which soon could pass 100 per cent at the present inflation rate, then could be used to double the "base," Papan said.

Papan's bill requires the base be computed on the highest salary in office and restricts cost of living increases to the years after the actual drawing of a pension begins.

"I believe my bill provides adequate pension benefits for lawmakers and constitutional officers," Papan said.

"and it protects the taxpayer from future 'retirement bonanzas' which we were called back into session to deal with."

The Daly City legislator was appointed last week to the Public Employees and Retirement Committee, which was to review and pass on these bills, beginning Monday.

Field said he thought the legislature might have the matter taken care of and be ready to adjourn late this week.

JESD Board Adopts 16 District Goals

The Goals Advisory Committee of the Jefferson Elementary School District in a recently completed study ranked competence in fundamental skills, acceptance of responsibility and development of pride in one's ethnic heritage as the three top achievements students should attain.

The 17-member group compiled findings of various school committees, and submitted a list of 16 district goals which the board adopted at a recent meeting.

In a two sentence introduction, the committee stated that the goals are set forth "to help each child achieve individual maximum growth mentally, physically, and emotionally. The achievements of these goals will be the joint effort of the child, the school, the home and the community."

Associate Superintendent of Personnel and Instruction Dr. Vinton Stratton said the goals would be presented to the administrative group, which includes the school principals, curriculum coordinators, and psychologists. "They will be considering the necessity for a needs assessment," Stratton said.

The goals, ranked in order of frequency mentioned by the school committees, are:

- Achieve competence in reading, language arts, and math, commensurate with individual ability.

- Accept responsibility and develop an open mind, self-confidence, self-reliance, self-discipline, and respect authority.

Develop pride in one's ethnic heritage, participate in a multi-racial and multi-cultural society, and be provided with an atmosphere which supports an appreciation and understanding of cultural diversity.

- Develop an understanding of the physical world and the wise use of natural resources.

- Develop good health and physical fitness.

- Be provided with learning experience which will lead to individual self-realization, character development, and constructive participation in a democratic society.

- Develop musical, dramatic and artistic talents and appreciations.

- Develop a positive attitude toward learning.

- Develop the ability to work cooperatively with others and recognize individual rights and property.

- Be provided the opportunity to develop constructive use of leisure time and an interest in participating in voluntary recreation activities.

- Have equal educational opportunities regardless of sex.

- Be offered flexible programs to meet individual needs.

- Have learning difficulties identified and resolved as early as possible.

- Develop skills in the art of homemaking, as well as in the skills of various industrial and vocational trades.

- Appreciate the importance of the family.

Water Rate

rate hike for everyone had been informally approved previously by the San Francisco Public Utilities Commission. The Board of Supervisors, however, rejected the equal rate hike and approved the discriminatory water increases.

Burke emphasized that he was not attempting to set water rates. He did say, however, that pending a hearing on a permanent injunction in the case — probably in four to six months — he would have no objection to San Francisco immediately making a flat rate increase for all users.

San Francisco's Deputy City Atty. Morris Dow said he would put the proposal for a 17.4 per cent uniform water rate increase before San Francisco officials.

Dow added, however, that he believes the higher increase for suburban cities is justified because the people of San Francisco "bore all the risk and expense of bond issues to build the project."

County Defends Health Services

San Mateo County mental health officials have produced evidence which they say indicates that services for the mentally ill in this area are not nearly as bad as a study released ten days ago alleges.

In that report last month, a graduate student from the University of California at Berkeley, Larry Sosowsky, concluded that 59 per cent of 260 patients released from state mental hospitals to this county over 1½-year period received no follow-up treatment here.

Statistical data amassed by local authorities paint a far different picture.

According to figures released Monday by Dr. John Visher, chief of the county's Community Mental Health Services, only nine per cent of the patients released from state hospitals in fiscal year 1971-72 to this county are known to have received no treatment during the first 30 days after their release.

In addition, another 23 per cent may or may not have been served. The department is not certain about that group. In all, the county's study shows that as many as 32 per cent of those patients either did not get follow-up care or may not have.

County officials, however, say that those persons did not choose to seek care here — for whatever reason. And, they point out, there is nothing which forces such persons to get treatment. Nor is there any mechanism by which the state or county can mandate that they do so.

"They may not want treatment," explained Visher. "They may not need treatment. They may be getting treatment outside this county. We are well aware of the fact that some people don't get treatment. This study was done for one 30-day period. I'm sure that some people got treatment after that too."

The county's report, which took one analyst more than a week to formulate, according to Visher, covers a period which is different from Sosowsky's.

Still, the county spokesmen believe that the data their report offers would be fairly typical of any 30-day period studied.

The county's analysis involves a total of 215 people discharged from state hospitals. Of those, 29 per cent either left the county, were returned to jails or got treatment outside the county. Of the remaining 153 persons, 49 either did not get treated here or may not have been treated. Of the total of 215, 104 got services from either the division of mental health or the division of social services here.

Visher emphasized that, "We have no lever on anyone. Some simply decide they don't need or want help."

Schizophrenia

- A young schizophrenic, who spent two years at Napa State Hospital, was finally released because his parents claimed he was getting steadily worse. When he was discharged, it was advised that he be placed in a local board and care home here. None was available. Remarks the mother of this boy, "There is no program for the ones who do not meet the requirements of the structured programs set up by the county."

- A 23-year-old schizophrenic with a history of seriously disabling illness was released from Agnews State Hospital early in 1972 and went to live at a San Mateo apartment. A year later, he was living in a San Mateo hotel. His condition worsened to the point where he was thrown out of the hotel. He then spent three weeks at Chope Community Hospital in that city. He then was allowed to live in homes in Santa Clara County, all avenues here having been exhausted.

- The mother of a 20-year-old psychotic son has reached what sounds like her wit's end over what to do about her boy. "Has the state decided that mental illness no longer exists? Care is geared to the more well, cooperative patient. The street becomes the home of the really ill person. I will probably be told next that my only alternative is to put my son out on the street. I feel that closing down the state hospitals has not placed the responsibility back on the community at the local level. It has placed it back on the parent... We have gone the full circle and we have no answers. None."

- A young man who had a history of instability tried to commit suicide in mid-1973. He was admitted to Chope Community Hospital and spent three weeks there. He was still very sick, according to his parents. "We had nowhere to turn but to bring him home," they say. "As parents, we have done all we could financially, physically and emotionally. Charles (a pseudonym) is sick and needs care, guidance and help to adjust to the outside world... Where do we go? Where do we get help? Where will Charles live?"

And so the stories go. Mrs. Oliphant's files bulge with the sad case histories of these tragic individuals and their distraught families.

That 22-year-old woman who could not sleep at night because of her illness perhaps sums up what it means to be a schizophrenic:

"For an hour I tried to figure a way of ending up in jail for one or two days because there I would be safe from myself and couldn't do harm (physically) to anyone else. That seemed the only place to turn to."

"I knew if I did blow up I would end up in Napa State Hospital. God, I didn't want that. It would mean two weeks or two months or maybe longer. It would mean losing my apartment, where to store my furniture, but even more important losing the small foothold I had gained in two years with the community."

"That's what I couldn't lose. If I had gone in, discharge would have been hell. They release you with no money (welfare stops checks when you enter the state hospital) and no place to go."

Fate of Martin House Up to SSF Residents

The question of saving South San Francisco's slice of history — the old Martin house — remains in the air.

But Wednesday night, the council agreed to take an option on the half-acre site on Grand Avenue. Under agreement with owner George Burkhardt, the amount of the option would equal whatever it would cost him to lease a chain link fence to put up around the old house, which is daily threatened by vandals.

The decision will rest on whether enough South San Franciscans come forth to offer their services to help with restoration, according to Mayor Terry Mirri. They will have an opportunity to express themselves at a special study session Oct. 9 at City Hall.

Children recently tried to burn the house, he complained to the council. Burkhardt said he wanted to raze the house immediately and develop the site for duplexes. The site consists of three lots, each 50 by 140 feet deep.

City officials were reluctant to make any move which would cost the city great sums of money, they said. Councilmen were warned by City Mgr. Ed Alario that restoration of the home could cost from $200,000 to $800,000.

Burkhardt told the council he has had other offers for the property.

City officials are awaiting response to letters sent to organizations in the city, asking for help in the Martin House.

The first donation for the project has been received — $10 from Leve Baldi Merlino, a Daly City resident who recently moved from South San Francisco.

Michael Nomellini, 20, who lives across the street, became the first labor volunteer. He restored the woodwork in his own home, he said, and offered to do the same on the Martin House.

However, Mayor Terry Mirri said he does not believe the response has been sufficient. He said that although many citizens have expressed enthusiasm, none has been willing to serve on a committee to restore the house.

Arnett Bill On Death Now Law

Assemblyman Dixon Arnett's "death recognition" bill was signed Friday by Governor Reagan, but his bill which would have provided funds for summer school for autistic children was vetoed.

The death recognition bill, AB 3560, takes effect immediately because of its "emergency" clause.

The bill establishes death as an irreversible cessation of brain function.

Arnett, R-Redwood City, said he introduced the measure "in an attempt to clear up the legal controversy surrounding the question of when death occurs."

Arnett said the bill was prompted by recent court cases which have involved heart transplants.

"The bill is not an attempt to tell a doctor how to perform his duties, but rather is an attempt to provide legal and medical protection to the physician and the patient," Arnett said.

The new law states that there is nothing within its provision which shall prohibit a physician from also using other usual and customary procedures for determining death. It's key is a legal recognition of death.

The bill that was vetoed was AB 3593, which would have provided $800,000 annually for autistic children to attend summer school. Presently they attend public schools during fall and spring semesters. An autistic child is described by a national organization as one with severe disorders of communication and behavior, whose disability became manifested during early stages of childhood. Characteristics include impaired speech, extreme depression for no apparent reason and a lack of intellectual development.

Pacifica's Westport Drive Intersection Vote on Street Closing Delayed

A proposal to close the Westport Drive intersection of the Coast Freeway to cross traffic was held up last week when a Fairway Park neighborhood leader protested to the Pacifica City Council.

Marilyn Springer said the move would split her neighborhood, and that her neighbors have been unable to express their feelings on the proposal.

The proposal has been referred to the city's Transportation and Safety Commission for study and recommendation.

City Mgr. David Thompson said there have been 19 accidents since 1968 including two injury accidents and one with two deaths and five injuries.

He said the intersection is at the south end of a freeway without signals for 3.8 miles. That is an unanticipated hazard, requiring reduction of speed to 45 m.p.h. — which is still too fast for "safe intersection movements," Thompson said.

A resolution from the council to the Department of Transportation asking it to close the median was proposed.

Mrs. Springer complained that directing the traffic to the Sharp Park Road overcrossing would be unsafe and result in conflicting traffic movements. She said the pedestrian underpass is dark and littered with broken bottles.

In other action, the council last week:

- Authorized the city manager to start negotiation with the Burlingame consulting engineering firm of Hammett & Edison to check into the adequacy of the Pacifica Cable Co., and to negotiate with other firms as well. Hammett & Edison offered to do the job for a maximum of $3,700.

- Authorized the city manager to investigate complaints about taxi service in Pacifica.

- Accepted completion of the second phase of Frontierland Park which included a retaining wall, picnic area, horseshoe pits, volleyball court, drainage, paths, bridge, benches, parking lot, sprinkler system, light standards, and grading of soil for future landscaping.

- Requested a meeting of representatives of the county welfare department, the Information and Referral Service, and Mark Savage of the Youth Services Bureau to determine who should sell food stamps in Pacifica, under what conditions, and how much the city should contribute to the project.

Stewart Concerned Over Control of RP Commission

Concern that the Board of Supervisors may be attempting to extend its influence over the county's Regional Planning Commission at the expense of cities was expressed at the San Mateo County Council of Mayors Friday night by Mayor McRobert L. Stewart of Daly City.

Stewart, chairman of the mayors' council, warned that if a proposal from county supervisors to increase its representation on the RPC by six members is approved it might, in effect, weaken cities' power on the board.

"I have always believed that the RPC represented the cities. I think this is a very important proposal," the North County mayor asserted. "It is important that we be responsible."

"If the county wants to appoint six representatives, the cities should express their stand," he suggested, because at least some municipalities seem unaware of what is going on.

"We have been asked to put input into the RPC," Stewart, speaking for the cities, said.

The mayors, in what Councilman Robert A. Jones of Belmont has termed, "one of the biggest issues to hit the Peninsula," acclaimed by voice vote their unanimous opposition to a Southern Pacific railroad's proposal for a 111 per cent increase in its commute rates "to get out of the local commute service."

"The Southern Pacific is trying to get out when mass transit is becoming one of the major issues," Jones claimed. "It is not responsible to the people nor to the public at large."

Stewart asked for a voice vote, and the result sounded through the isolated area with a roar, except for one lonely "no," which Stewart remarked was "a non-accountable voice."

Commissioners Want a Structural Analysis

Report on Magnolia Center Asked

The South San Francisco Parks and Recreation Commission voted 4-3 Thursday night to ask the city to fund a $2,500 structural analysis of the Magnolia Avenue Center to determine once and for all the fate of that building.

The request, which would be confined to a study by a structural engineer of the concrete floor, was blasted by the Commission Chairman James Morton.

Morton argued that the study was unnecessary and that the commission was only "spinning its wheels" by this action.

There have already been three other studies on the center, which was condemned in the mid-fifties. They were done by an architectural firm the city fire marshal and the city insurance company's engineer.

Even though condemned, Magnolia Center stayed open until last year.

Ironically, the four commissioners who voted for the analysis agreed with Morton's contention that the city center was of no apparent use to the city, and that the study would prove that.

However, they felt this final documentation of the poor condition of the facility would put an end to the ongoing debate over what to do with it.

It was believed that a finding that the concrete is not adequate, as is assumed will happen, will result in a final commission recommendation that the property be put up for sale by the city.

Voting for the study were Wallace McDonald, Frank Prendergast and the two new members of the commission, Ed Rickenbacher and William Craib. Opposing the recommendation were Henry Vom Steeg, Lura Sellick and Morton.

McDonald's nine member Community Center Committee recommended the study. The commission had considered the building for a community center, but was unsatisfied with its condition.

McDonald held that if the commission wanted to ask the City Council to sell the building, they should have the best documentation possible to support that position.

"We want to make a determination on the building once and for all," McDonald said, "so we can then go about getting some community centers for the city." Craib agreed, saying that the three previous reports did not include the structural report.

Prendergast said the building should be destroyed, and that the final documentation would be the "nail in the coffin."

Morton, upset at spending the $2,500, threatened to speak before the council in opposition to the proposal. But he backed down at the urging of Prendergast, who said he shouldn't speak against the majority of the commissioners.

Morton's frustration was summed up by Vom Steeg, who quipped, "It's just too bad that we have to spend money to find out that an unsafe building is ready to fall down."

DONATION

Mrs. William Cuevas, of the Catholic Daughters of the Court of St. Mary No. 1155 presents a check, on behalf of the organization to Sister Madeleva, principal of Our Lady of Perpetual Help School in Daly City. The check for $100 will go to the school scholarship fund.

Demos Widen Lead Over GOP in County

Democrats have far outdistanced Republicans in registering to vote in the Nov. 5 general election, San Mateo County Clerk-Recorder Marvin Church reports.

The total number of registered voters in the county stands at 283,333, an increase of nearly 4,000 since the June primary election, but far short of the 310,204 registration figure for the November 1972 general election.

Church said that the number of persons registered in the Democratic Party has increased by 3,014 since the primary for a total of 157,665, or 55.65 per cent of the total registration.

The number of registered Republicans, on the other hand, has increased by only 278 since the primary for a total of 106,207, giving the GOP 37.48 per cent of the registration.

Registration of persons declining to state a party affiliation has increased by 693 for a total of 17,904.

The American Independent Party showed an increase of 13 registrants, for a total of 723, while the Peace and Freedom Party showed a loss of seven registrants, for a total of 934.

Democrats continue to hold a registration lead in all of the county's congressional, state senatorial and state assembly districts.

The breakdown in registration figures:

Eleventh Congressional District — Democratic, 133,517; Republican, 82,515.

Twelfth Congressional District — Democratic, 24,148; Republican, 23,692.

Sixth Senatorial District — Democratic, 79,323; Republican, 42,313.

Tenth Senatorial District — Democratic, 78,342; Republican, 63,894.

Eighteenth Assembly District — Democratic, 8,144; Republican, 3,129.

Nineteenth Assembly District — Democratic, 71,179; Republican, 39,184.

Twentieth Assembly District — Democratic, 70,004; Republican, 61,203.

Twenty-first Assembly District — Democratic, 8,338; Republican, 2,691.

Church has reminded persons not registered to vote that the deadline for registration in order to vote in the November general election is Oct. 6.

He said that three locations will open next Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. to accept registrations. They are the north lobby of the Hall of Justice in Redwood City, the Election Registration Department, 40 Tower Road, San Mateo, and the County Department of Health and Welfare Office, 1024 Mission Road, South San Francisco.

'Survival' Conference Draws 200

More than 200 persons examined "new directions for the 70s" Saturday in an all-day conference at Skyline College in San Bruno.

The conference, "Survival in the Suburbs," was sponsored by four local women's organizations in cooperation with Skyline College's office of community services.

While no conclusions were reached, the consensus seemed to be that although the '70s have brought about new conditions — scarcities, women's liberation, and greater freedoms — many of the age-old problems that face parents trying to rear a family while fulfilling themselves by various means, remain with us.

Although family therapist Gerald W. Smith opened the program with an overview of new problems in the suburbs for the 1970s, many questions he was asked centered about such family topics as how to handle children's quarrels.

Seven workshops followed on New Directions, Caring and Coping, Legal Equity, Roads to Re-Entry, Surviving Alone, Time for Self, and Women in Public Life. The latter workshop featured three city councilwomen, including a mayor and an ex-mayor, plus a planning commissioner.

Although mostly women were in attendance, there was a surprising scattering of men taking part.

Sponsors included the League of Women Voters of North San Mateo County, the American Association of University Women — including both Pacifica and San Bruno branches — and the Portola Business and Professional Women's Club.

Fire Hits Home; Damage Set at $7,000

A fire that struck a Pacifica home while the occupants were watching television caused an estimated $7,000 damage Sunday evening, Pacifica firemen report.

Damaged was the home of Mr. and Mrs. Domingo Ainza, 278 Sunshine Drive.

According to Pacifica firemen, children were watching television when a visiting cousin discovered a fire in the rear bedroom. She got everyone out of the house and called firemen.

The fire was confined to the bedroom of the Fairmont district home, but caused considerable smoke and heat damage throughout the home, firemen said.

Firemen estimate damage at $5,000 to building and $2,000 to contents.

Five seniors at Serra High School, San Mateo have been named National Merit semi-finalists, according to Rev. Ludwig Andre, principal.

They are Philip L. Fonseca, San Mateo; Gerald P. Harnett, South San Francisco; Louis T. Mayta, San Bruno; Dennis J. McEmmerney, San Carlos; and Curtis R. Tingley, Burlingame.

The honor goes to approximately 15,000 high school seniors in the United States, representing the top one-half per cent of academically talented students. They were high scorers among the one million students in about 17,000 schools who took nationally administered tests during their junior year.

Semi-finalists must qualify as finalists to be eligible for Merit Scholarships. They compete for 1,000 one-time $1,000 and $2,400 four year renewable awards. Students are judged on a combination of academic records, accomplishments, extra-curricular activities and test scores.

Winners will be announced in April, 1975.

SSF Planners Act to Ease Driveway Access Confusion

The South San Francisco Planning Commission acted last Tuesday to clear up past confusion regarding driveway access and lot coverage variances.

In separate votes, the commission recommended that the City Council approve a deletion of maximum lot coverage restrictions in the R-1 Single Family Residential District; and that it approve amendments to the city's zoning ordinance relating to the design criteria for off-street parking, access and driveways.

The lot coverage issue developed because of the continuing requests from residents for variances from the maximum lot coverage in the R-1 zone. Development which would cover more than 40 per cent of the lot area had been prohibited by the R-1 zoning.

However, the commission had considered and approved many applications for variances which did not legally meet the required findings.

City Planner David Hale said that with the city's present setback requirements in the R-1 zone, the increase in lot coverage with the deletion of the 40 per cent coverage would be just 15 per cent.

Lot coverage restrictions prohibit the construction of patios, porches, pools and any other structure in the open area. Setback requirements pertain to the main buildings and do not exclude the development of patios and open decks.

Meanwhile, the action on the driveway access developed because the lack of standards had created confusion and ambiguity for the staff and community, according to Hale.

Hale said the intent of the amendments is "to eliminate the previous ambiguities and promote orderly growth of the community and the safe use of necessary parking facilities."

The approved amendments include minimum driveway, access and turnaround standards.

The commissioners were eager to set the standards since their recent bout with the Pat Brosnan and Co. case, in which they denied an applicant a permit for an apartment building because of unsatisfactory driveway access.

With Brosnan's appeal to the City Council scheduled to come up Oct. 7, Hale indicated that it would give the Planning Commission a stronger case if they approved the standards.

SSF City Council Votes To Join Library System

South San Francisco City Council voted last week to join the Peninsula Library System.

The action means that, when the move is effective, South San Francisco residents can take books out of any public library in San Mateo County and return it to any library. In addition, South San Franciscans will be able to order a book, at their own library, from any other library, and obtain it within 24 hours.

The City Council met in a special meeting to approve the recommendation of the Library Board, in order to meet the Sept. 30 deadline for joining this year. The Library Board had been resisting the move for four years. Menlo Park now is the only library in the county operating outside the library system.

The council took under consideration the Library Board's argument that the cost of belonging to the system will not be taken out of the library's regular budget for books and employees.

The initial cost of joining the system will be covered by a state grant, according to Dr. Robert Alvarez, library administrator for South San Francisco for its first two years; then it would cost approximately $2,200 a year.

The Library Board also was concerned that, should belonging to the system result in hiring another employee, his or her salary would not be taken out of the library budget. Every library belonging to the system has a teletype installed in it, and some employee would have to man it.

Former Gangster to Speak at Skyline

Joe Sorrentino, nationally recognized for his transition from New York gang leader to successful author and lawyer, will discuss "Morality: Twilight Zone of the Law," Oct. 9, at 8 p.m. in the Skyline College Main Theater.

There is a fee of $2 per adult and $1 for students for this Community Services sponsored event.

Now a referee of the Juvenile Court of Los Angeles, a partner in his law firm, and an instructor at UCLA, Sorrentino has spoken before a quarter of a million people to date, sometimes sharing the platform with such prominent figures as Mark Hatfield, Ralph Nader and Ted Kennedy.

The son of a street sweeper, Sorrentino was flunked out of a high school, failed in 30 jobs, and was ousted out of the Marine Corps by the age of 20.

Yet this author of "The Moral Revolution and Law" and his autobiography "Up from Never" went on to graduate magna cum laude from the University of California and was valedictorian of his class at Harvard Law School.

6 Appointed To Human Relations Unit

The Board of Supervisors acted last Tuesday to bring the county's Human Relations Commission to full strength when they named six new commissioners.

The 15-member commission, which meets the third Thursday of each month to investigate complaints of racial, ethnic, housing, and employment discrimination, had dropped to nine members.

Three blacks and three whites were named. New members are Del Green, Foster City, a management consultant; Mary K. DeLong of San Mateo, a real estate woman; Mary Swan, a dental assistant from Foster City; Elmon Elmore of South San Francisco, an affirmative action officer for the U.S. Navy; Fallas Weinstein of South San Francisco, a financial analyst, and Kay Real, a Ravenswood teacher.

Con Artists and Swindlers

By LORENE BEASLEY
Editor of BBB Barometer
Due to an increasing number of reports concerning individuals who have been lured by con artists into withdrawing cash from savings and checking accounts, the Better Business Bureau urges all banks, savings and loan institutions and credit unions to warn their customers of the methods of swindling used. They range from age-old con games to clever sophisticated plans of thievery that can fool even the average, cautious citizen.

To protect oneself from the tragic loss of maybe an entire life savings, the following guidelines should be adhered to:

—Never discuss personal banking business with anyone other than your banker, your accountant or your attorney. Do not even tell people where you bank or have money deposited.

—Never divulge or verify account numbers of balances to strangers calling on the telephone. Anyone calling you from a bank or savings institution will have access to account number and balance information on your accounts. If a stranger calls to discuss your accounts, ask that a written letter explain the information desired.

—Always obtain a cashier's check when withdrawing large sums of money from a savings account.

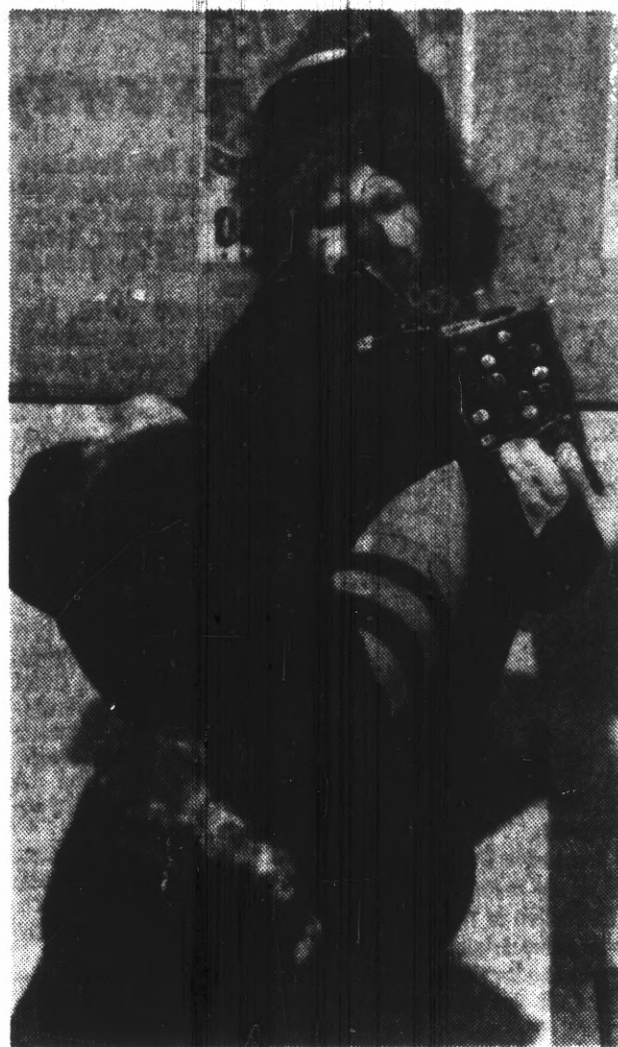

—Do not be pressured into a rushed cash settlement on a business transaction.

—Never settle a sizeable business transaction with cash unless the other party has been thoroughly investigated. Do not accept the word of someone related to the deal or recommended by the party with whom you are transacting.

—Never withdraw cash to use as good-faith or earnest money, and place in the hands of a stranger.

—Contact police or your bank's security department if a swindle is suspected. You may be helping to save someone else from being swindled.

—Remember the three "G's" make a swindle operation successful — goodness, gullibility and greed.

NELL

Good morning, good cooks.

When you read last week's column I'm sure you were all aware that the half cup uncooked rice called for in the Butterscotch Oatmeal Cookies was an error. (That ingredient would make for a very, very crunchy cookie... a tooth cruncher I suspect.) What the cookies really called for was one-half (1/2) cup margarine as was stated in the recipe.

Putting the past week behind us, let's consider making this delicious and attractive dish for dinner tonight. Combining pork chops and rice, it is a very tasty treat indeed.

ITALIAN CHOPS AND RICE

6 lean pork chops, about 1 1/2 pounds

salt, pepper and paprika
1 1/2 tablespoons oil

1 large onion, sliced

1 large green pepper, sliced

1 can (14 1/2 oz.) tomatoes

1 cup chicken broth or water

1 teaspoon salt

1/2 teaspoon each oregano and basil

1/4 teaspoon each garlic powder and pepper

1 teaspoon sugar

1 cup uncooked rice

Sprinkle the six chops with salt, pepper and paprika. Heat the one and one-half tablespoons oil in large skillet and brown chops. Remove chops and set aside. Add the sliced onion and green pepper and saute until tender. Stir in the canned tomatoes, one cup broth, one-half teaspoon each oregano and basil and one-fourth teaspoon each garlic powder and pepper and one teaspoon sugar. Stir in the one cup uncooked rice and stir well. Bring to boil. Arrange the six pork chops on top of rice. Cover and reduce heat, simmer for 30 minutes or until rice is tender. Fluff rice with fork. Serves 6.

Note: I made this recipe for three, using three chops and halving all ingredients except that I used two medium fresh tomatoes, cut in sixths and one small (10 oz.) can chicken broth.

A molded salad goes well with almost any meal, adding color, flavor and interesting textures to the menu.

NANCY'S APRICOT NECTAR SALAD

1 12-oz. can apricot nectar

1 small package lemon gelatin

1/2 cup crushed pineapple, undrained

2 Tablespoons lemon juice

1 medium can pears

1 med. can mandarin orange segments

Heat the 12-ounces nectar, stir in the lemon gelatin until completely dissolved. Blend in the half cup crushed pineapple and two tablespoons lemon juice. Pour into large flat dish about 1 1/2 quarts and refrigerate until thickened. Drain the canned pears and mandarin oranges and stir into gelatin and return to refrigerator. Chill until completely set. Cut into squares and serve on lettuce leaf with mayonnaise thinned with fruit juice.

Many of the students will continue to donate time on weekends and in the late afternoons, according to Mrs. Mary McCoy. Center for Better Living Program Slated Today

Children's services available at the Center for Better Living (Mental Health) and an opportunity to meet the center's new director, Floyd Wylie, Ph.D., will be the focus of a meeting sponsored by the North County Citizens' Advisory Committee for Mental Health Services today.

The meeting will be held at the Center, 45 Southgate Ave., Daly City. A monthly general membership meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. with the discussion of children's services at 8 p.m. A reception for Dr. Wylie will begin at 9:30 p.m. following the program. The public is invited to attend both the program and the reception.

The presentation of children's services by the staff will provide a look at current services being provided by the Center, a discussion of community needs and possible programs to be developed. The expectation is that recommendations for action will come from the meeting which will assist the center in planning for children's services.

WHITE CANE DAYS

Daly City Host Lions Club members McRobert Stewart, mayor of Daly City (right) and George O'Brien display a giant white cane in preparation for "White Cane Days." The Daly City service club will have its members throughout the city Oct. 4 and 5 to receive donations for sight conservation work. The Lions White Cane funds are collected by all volunteer workers and no administrative expenses are drawn away from public donations.

Daly City White Cane Days Sets Oct. 4 and 5

"You can express thanks for sight by sharing during Lions Club White Cane Days Oct. 4 and 5, to help others see better," says Jim Zylla, president of the Daly City Host Lions Club.

He reports that Lion Charlie Rathbun, general chairman of White Cane Days, 1974, for the California-Nevada District, declares that in the 23 years since a small town club raised $500, the whole state has approximated giving $5½ million to Lions Sight Serving funds, and Lions Clubs have used this in sight related services.

Funds so given are administered by each local club," says Rathbun. And each has kept the faith with its donors in using 100 percent of the money as carefully as possible toward saving sight and helping the blind.

This careful use, he says, includes, in addition to hundreds of special deeds of mercy, the establishment of four Lion-sponsored sight and blind serving foundations, numerous smaller ones, as well as literally thousands of group, local and individual Club projects.

Rathbun points out that some of the foundations provide eye banks, research, training in new techniques, clinics and medical and hospital facilities. Others offer rehabilitation, instruction and recreation for the blind. Zylla states that the motto of Lions International is "We serve" and that his Club is guided by that motto in the field of eye care.

He has appointed Lions George O'Brien and Al Tesoro as chairmen of the White Cane Days, 1974, in Daly City.

Children's Lit

Let's hear a cheer for children's literature. It is battered from pillar to post by every group that sues for equal rights.

This time it's the feminists, the crusading Women's Libbers. To them children's books constitute "an incredible conspiracy of conditioning."

In children's literature writes Elizabeth Fisher, editor of Aphra. "Boys are brought up to express themselves, girls to please." She finds an over-representation of males in children's titles with girls condemned to come tumbling after, as in the nursery rhyme about Jack and Jill.

Ms. Fisher complains that low-prestige animals in picture books are females. To prove her point she cites Sylvia the Sloth, Petunia the Goose and a horrible female hippopotamus. She also complains that such books as "Mommies at Work" portray the woman — be she an atom splitter or someone's maid — rushing home from work because home and children's are mommy's responsibility: not daddys'.

For Ms. Fisher and her kind, Goldilocks, Cinderella, Sleeping Beauty, Dorothy of the Wizard of Oz and even Little Red-Riding Hood are unacceptable heroines and fit for banishment.

For a while it seemed that the gals were not going to be allowed to change children's books without a fight. At long last it seemed that after witnessing the banishment of Little Black Sambo and eeny, meeny, miney, moe — the white, American noodle was ready to do battle.

Following the lead of Dr. Bartlett C. Jones of the University of Florida, the noodle started to shout back to the "fems" that "it ain't so." To cite their case Dr. Jones points out that in the Wizard of Oz, Dorothy is the heroine while the brainless scarecrow and the cowardly lion are males. In Cinderella, Sleeping Beauty and Beauty and the Beast, the virtues lie in the gals, not the men. Red-Riding Hood's villain is the male wolf. The Little Red Hen plants the wheat, makes the flour and bakes the bread, while the lazy dog, cat, pig and turkey who won't assist are males.

DR. JONES POINTS out that in current mythology the Tooth Fairy, who is female, is a day to day benefactor, while such masculine types as Santa Claus and the Easter Bunny make but one shot a year at serving human beings.

He admits that in animal stories the female mothers the "kids" while the father trots off in sheer glamour, but that's the way nature set things up. If the girls want to see the female lionized they'll have to write about bees and ants, and extol the virtues of black widow spiders who wind up eating their males for lunch.

Meanwhile, says Dr. Jones, the feminists should take a look at Heidi, Mary Poppins, Harriet the Spy, Mrs. Tittlemouse and Little Women. He suggests that even Beatrix Potter and Thornton Burgess loved the female sex.

Nevertheless, the women's libs answer Dr. Jones with a list of acceptable children's books. Included on it are "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland"; "Where the Lillies Bloom" by Vera and Bill Cleaver; "The Motoring Millers" by Albert W. Constant; "Rufus Gideon Grant" by Leigh Dean; "From the Mixed Up Files of Mrs. Basil E. Frankweiler" by Elaine K. Konigsburg; "A Wrinkle in Time" by Madeline L'Engle; Lois Lenski's "Strawberry Girl," and Astrid Lindgren's "Pippi Longstocking." Even "Anne of Green Gables" and "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" make the list.

In the face of such a list and before the crusading liberationists, Dr. Jones creeps back into the noodle role of white American men with a weak admission stating, "that his rebuttal has flaws and maybe Ms. Fisher's list will be 'useful nonetheless'."

As for us — in this column — maybe the All American Noodle deserves all that he gets from the women, the blacks, the children's libbers and the third worlders.

As one of the noodles, we wonder how backbones are developed so there can be a crusade of America's most pitiful minority. Men!

DARING SWIM

Argument Over Blame For Long Meetings

A tiff developed between the South San Francisco Planning Commissioners and its planning staff last Tuesday night over who was responsible for causing the commission's continuously long meetings.

Commissioners indicated that the staff reports, which contain information on each item on the agenda, were incomplete and therefore forced them to ask additional questions at the meetings.

City Planner David Hale, who prepares the reports, countered that they are complete, but added that it is an impossible job to prepare them because of the shortage of staff. "No city of this size would have this small a staff," Hale said.

And Zoning Administrator William Costanzo blamed part of the problem on the failure of the Commissioners to background themselves on the items before them.

THE PLANNERS agreed that the lack of staff was a problem and that something should be done about it.

However, the commissioners disputed Costanzo's claim that they weren't doing their homework and insisted that their questions were necessary to clear up matters not included in the staff report.

The squabbling over the preponderance of discussion on each item, and whose fault it was, lasted about half an hour and came at near the close of the four and a half hour meeting. Planning Commission meetings, which begin at 8 p.m., have been regularly lasting until midnight or later.

The issue actually arose earlier in the meeting when Chairman T. O. Mathewson complained that a staff report didn't have enough information. Hale responded that the commission was the best informed in the state "when you take action."

But Mathewson retorted that they were the best informed alright, but only after they discuss for two hours what should have been on the staff report.

Hearing on SSF Town Plans to Meeting Open Store Planned

A proposal to open a discount department store in the abandoned White Front store at Spruce Avenue and El Camino Real by J. C. Penney Co. will be considered Oct. 8 by the South San Francisco Planning Commission.

The matter was to be considered at the Sept. 24 meeting, but was tabled at the request of the applicant, who wanted more time to prepare the proposal.

Besides the vacant White Front, the 14.5 acre property includes an automobile service station, supermarket, and an 850 space parking lot. J. C. Penney would take over operation of both the service station and supermarket, besides opening a discount store in the existing White Front building.

Insurance Discussion Set

National Health Insurance will be the topic of a panel discussion Oct. 6, at noon at Temple United Methodist Church.

A salad luncheon will be served in Fellowship Hall, and the open discussion will follow.

Moderator will be Linda Gano, mission coordinator for Christian Social Involvement. Taking part in the discussion will be Al Pross, director of the Department of Federal Liaison for the California Medical Association; Holger Rasmussen, M.D., chairman of the Federal Legislation Committee of the California Medical Association; and Jesse Mark, Blue Cross and Blue Shield representative.

The meeting is sponsored by the United Methodist Women. Temple Church is located at 19th avenue and Junipero Serra Blvd., and can be reached on the M, 26, and 28 lines.

A unique and unusual event will occur tomorrow when Citizens Pro and Con of South San Francisco sponsor and host an old fashioned town meeting to be held at the Holiday Inn, South San Francisco, 7:30 p.m. in the Franciscan Room.

All councilmen, school board, city commissions and city and school staff members, as well as South San Francisco residents have been invited and will participate in the upcoming event.

Citizens Pro and Con, a non-partisan, non-political organization is dedicated to promoting community involvement in all civic and governmental issues.

C.P.C. President Skip Henderson described the upcoming event as "a showcase in community involvement."

"Unlike most functions of this nature which are stilted and formal, this meeting will be held in a semi-social setting," Henderson added.

All residents of South San Francisco are invited to attend.

Commander ZWIEBRUCKEN, Germany — U.S. Air Force Lieutenant Colonel Melvin P. Gillis, brother of Sister Virginia Gillis, College of Our Lady of Mercy, 2300 Adeline Drive, Burlingame, has arrived at Zweibrucken AB, Germany for duty as commander of the 26th Supply Squadron.

Colonel Gillis, commissioned in 1953 through Officer Candidate School, is a member of the U.S. Air Forces in Europe.

Prior to his assignment at Zweibrucken he was chief of the Maintenance Requirements Division at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, where he earned his M.S. degree in logistics management in 1969 under the Air Force Institute of Technology program.

New Dining Image at Burlingame Hyatt

This is the week that is at Hyatt House Burlingame! The Hyatt Corporation debuts an extensive remodeling of the main dining room, now called Hugo's Market, which includes a new $10,000 Salad Bar. Besides being a new room, General Manager Bob Williamson says it is also a complete new image for Hyatt. Even the new dinner menu is a unique creation. All dinners include selections from the Market's salad bar, Grecian bread (San Francisco sourdough), special potatoes, fruits, confections and cordials. Without a doubt, Hugo's Market is sure to be the talk of the Peninsula for months to come. "Happy Hours" prevail all the time in the lounge of Oliver's restaurant, South San Francisco. Even in these days of rising prices, Owner Fred Martinelli continues to charge his patrons a modest 85 cents for all well drinks. Guy Falchi, who has owned and operated several restaurants and clubs on the Peninsula, is now general manager of the Sea Bowl recreational complex on Coast Highway One in Pacifica. Falchi is currently featuring Joe Burton, a fine jazz pianist, in the Surf Room lounge on Friday and Saturday nights, as well as Saturday afternoons from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Shirt Tail Receives Latest Menu Award

Adrian Stickney, owner of the Peninsula's Hick'ry Houses and Palo Alto's Shirt Tail, received an award from the National Restaurant Association and the Golden Gate Restaurant Association of San Francisco. The award was offered in recognition of the outstanding menu featured at the Shirt Tail. Stickney also received an award for a children's menu for the same distinguished restaurant. Enrico Romano, owner of Romano's Italian restaurant in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, where some of the Bay Area's finest pizzas are prepared, has been dubbed with many a title: the "Shah of Salami," "Prince of Pizzas," "Apostle of the Anchovie," and "Chief of the Cheese." And if you head on down to this Pacifica dining spot you will find out why his titles have been unchallenged. Lifelong Sportsman Murray Lehr, owner of the popular Lehr's Greenhouse garden restaurant in San Francisco, was topped by his own teenage son on a blue marlin fishing trip in Hawaiian waters. Randy's catch — a 414 pounder. Group business functions and banquets of all kinds are easily accommodated at the Gold Platter in San Carlos, where Owner George Green is making a big success out of his first West Coast restaurant venture.

Finocchio's Elton Paris "Bivocal" Voice

Elton Paris, the droll comedian and singer in Finocchio's colorful show, has laid claim to having the world's greatest "bivocal" voice. He can switch in mid-song from a clear falsetto down to the deepest booming bass. The result is startling to spectators. A large appetite winner at Scotty Campbell's in Redwood City is the Broiled Mahi Mahi Almondine (favorite fish of the islands). Every member of this well-organized staff goes beyond the line of duty to see to the comfort and dining wishes of every patron. Tip for theatergoers: Let your waitress know that you have a certain time to consider and she will serve you with that in mind. The famed Wellington Room of Phil Lehr's Steakery, in downtown San Francisco, was the location site for elegant dining scenes filmed for a forthcoming "Streets of San Francisco" segment.

Castaway Features Live Entertainment

The Castaway's patrons asked for it and General Manager Al Stuetzel provided it. And we're talking about live entertainment. Billy Tavake and the Royal Polynesians are now featured in the lounge on Friday and Saturday nights. Recent party events at this Coyote Point restaurant included a "Happy Birthday" celebration for Jess L. Bidwell of Alhambra, who was joined by his lovely wife Virginia and friends. General Manager Joe De Dio has added quite a list of enticements to the agenda at Holiday Inn, Belmont. A special "Beefeater's Delight" buffet lunch is featured every Wednesday in the Gold Coast dining room. Steamship Round of Beef is the main attraction and it includes salad and vegetables. And if you're a football fan, drop in on Monday nights during the televised NFL Game for the big spaghetti feed which is served in the lounge. Headed for the 49er home opening? $3 buys round-trip transportation to Candlestick Park and one cocktail before or after the game. Vince Licata, of Vince's Italian and Seafood restaurant, is an avid sports fan as well as an authority on superb food. There is always a convivial group at the lengthy bar, a favorite rendezvous of sports figures, newspapermen and personalities of the entertainment world.

MUSICAL VERSATILITY

The wild Kurt Alan Show, two guys and a gal noted for their musical versatility, play for dancing in the lounge of the Fisherman in Burlingame, Tuesdays through Saturdays. It's spir and fun for the after-work crowd at the classy Burlingame seafood and Italian restaurant that promises "unforgettable dining by the Bay."

Nautical Decor for Moonrakers Customers

It has been reported that the nautical decor at The Moonraker in Rockaway Beach is so authentic that a retired sea captain dining here almost bellowed sailing orders at the staff. Canvas sails hang from the ceiling and life preservers are a part of the cork wall coverings. Wood pilings are stacked throughout the main dining room and lounge, where a panoramic view of the rolling surf and ships on the horizon is a spectacular experience while dining. On the level below is Nick Gust's Captain Charles restaurant, where gourmet seafood is the specialty. Across the street and also offering an oceanside view is Nick's restaurant and lounge, business begins with breakfast from 10 a.m. Vincenzo's, specialists in seafood, has new hours and is now open on Mondays serving luncheon and dinners. Something quite different at this Colma restaurant is the "door prize" feature on Monday and Thursday nights with two drawings — 7:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. Also keep in mind that you can enjoy fashion shows on Monday and Thursday during luncheon. There's live entertainment in the lounge on Friday and Saturday nights featuring Joe Grado. As you can see, there's a lot going on at Vincenzo's

LIONS WHITE CANE DAYS

FRIDAY, OCT. 4 THRU SATURDAY, OCT. 5

Instruction in Long Cane travel techniques is just one of the many services rendered to the sightless.

Reading BRAILLE LOOKS EASY... but takes a long time to learn! It can bring much joy and happiness to both young and old alike! Your contributions can help!

OF DALY CITY

DALY CITY, CALIFORNIA 94017

Dear Friend and Contributor,

The Daly City Skylions are again asking your support in the forthcoming White Cane Days Drive. Each year we ask our community for funds and old eyeglasses to aid us in our work to help the blind and near blind. There are people in our community that are unable to help themselves. That is why WE are INVOLVED.

All funds raised in this drive by our club, are spent locally. Like all groups doing charitable work, finances are continually being used up. The general public aid is needed. Your donation is used 100% for sight conservation and is tax deductible.

WE ARE PEOPLE WHO NEED PEOPLE.

Sincerely yours,

Del C. Wilson

EYE EXAMINATIONS are essential to detect early signs of eye problems. Your contributions can help some unfortunate youngster to retain his eyesight.

White Cane Days Way!

● ENCHANTED HILLS CAMP

A summer camp for blind children and adults receives direct benefit from Lions White Cane Days. This camp is a division of San Francisco Lighthouse For The Blind. Youngsters learn to swim, ride horseback, play softball, go on hikes and learn a whole new way of life.

● BLIND CARE CENTER.

One of America's great Blind Care Centers is located in Arkansas Enterprises for the Blind. Its numerous well-known services have made it a favorite of many Lions Clubs which raise funds the White Cane Days way.

● LIONS EYE FOUNDATION

Located in San Francisco is one of the great eye institutions that can continue to do great work with the help of the Lions White Cane Days.

● BLIND SENIOR CITIZENS HOMES

are another reason why you should donate to the LIONS WHITE CANE DAYS. Won't you help us?

PLAQUE PRESENTATION

Members of the San Francisco Lighthouse Auxiliary for the Blind recently presented Mrs. Fred Gellert (second from right) with a plaque for the many contributions made to the Guild by the Fred Gellert Foundation. With the foundation's help, the auxiliary has been able to help the blind in the community.

Mrs. Gellert has been an auxiliary member since 1963, and is currently on the board of directors. Pictured are (from left) Mrs. Joseph Allen, Mrs. Henry Parachini, Mrs. William Dwyer, Mrs. Gellert and Mrs. Emil Anderson.

Colma Elementary Red Cross Preparation Gets State Funding For Parenthood Series

The Colma Elementary School has been approved for state funding of a new Early Childhood Education program for Kindergarten through third grades.

The program includes assessing the needs of the children and working with each child according to his or her individual needs.

State funding makes it possible to provide a teacher's aide for three hours a day in all lower primary classes. The school is now training aides who will be in the classrooms around October 1, according to Principal Barbara Hemp.

Mrs. Hemp added that parent volunteers also are needed to work at the school and invited interested persons to call the school for more information.

The School Advisory

Board has met to review the State E.C.E. criteria, and frequent meetings are planned to update the Colma program. Regular meetings of the Advisory Board are held the third Thursday of the month at 7 p.m. in the teachers' room and are open to the public.

A special orientation evening is scheduled for tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the multi-use room to explain both the E.C.E. program and the new total reading program beginning for grades one through three and for some remedial students from the upper grades.

Information about how parents can help their children with reading will be part of the evening's agenda. Anyone who is interested is invited to attend the meeting.

2 Named To Junior League

Michael Keeney, student body president at the College of San Mateo, and Mrs. Joan Hagey of Atherton, a member of the Junior League, were appointed to the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Commission here by the Board of Supervisors.

Among other appointments announced at the same time by Board Chairman Jean Fassler were six new members to the Human Relations Commission boosting that Commission from nine to 15 members.

They include Elmon Elmore of South San Francisco, a financial analyst with Stanford Research Institute; Kay Real, of Menlo Park, a teacher at Ravenswood High School; Mary K. DeLong of San Mateo, a realtor; Del Green of Foster City, a management consultant; and Mildred Swan of Foster City, a dental assistant.

Appointed to the Technical Advisory Committee on Drug Abuse were Frank Stagnaro of Redwood City, director of Chrysalis; and Dinore De Ranieri of Millbrae, a pharmacist.

ON PATROL
Coast Guard Sonar Technician Third Class James N. Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard L. Green of 1910 Alden St., Belmont, is a crewmember aboard the Coast Guard Cutter Jarvis, currently on a two-month Alaskan fishing law enforcement patrol.

The 378-foot cutter will patrol the Gulf of Alaska, compiling weather data and conducting oceanographic casts.

Before returning to his homeport at Honolulu, Green will visit several cities in Alaska.

A 1973 graduate of Carlmont High School, Belmont, he joined the Coast Guard in July 1973.

Nutrition Topic of Guild Meet

Mrs. John McCloskey, vice president of Holy Angels Women's Guild, has announced a special program for the guild's meeting tonight.

NELLINGEN, Germany — Robert D. Hart, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Hart, 950 Pleasant Hill Road, Redwood City, was promoted to Army specialist four while serving with the 472d Signal Company in Nellingen, Germany. Spec. Hart is an automotive mechanic in the company.

The American Red Cross offers monthly a free series of classes for expectant parents at the South San Francisco office, 803 1/2 Linden Ave., South San Francisco.

A new course begins Oct. 22, and continues each Tuesday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. for five sessions.

Designed to remove some concerns and worries about caring for newborn babies, the class is open to expectant parents, those planning adoption and expectant grandparents who would like to refresh their baby caring skills. The purpose is to help parents become more secure and independent in making decisions concerning themselves and baby.

Couples will receive instruction and participate in practical demonstration. This "how to" course included feeding, diapering, bathing baby, selection of layette and supplies; birth and delivery.

This is an opportunity for young couples to meet and share their thoughts with others who have mutual interests under the guidance and direction of a registered nurse trained as an instructor by the Red Cross.

A New Student Club at Terra Nova High

By LAURA DEL ROSSO

Campus Correspondent
Tiger Keys is one of the newest organizations at Terra Nova this year. The club consists of about 50 students, most of whom are juniors or seniors, who will work with the Executive Board on school related matters.

One of the activities in which the club now participates is peer-counseling. Each member of the club is a sort of big-brother and big-sister to about five to 10 freshmen. They will counsel these freshmen if they need help on school or social problems.

Other activities the club is planning are: an all-school variety show, organizing the Spring Fair, tutoring students who need help in their studies, selling tickets at dances and athletic events, and generally helping the school in any way they can. The club members will be designated by a pin which they will wear at school. The pin has the school crest on it. Pat Mickel, sophomore counselor and student activities director at Terra Nova, is the advisor to the organization.

Shoreline Park Plan to Council

The South San Francisco Planning Commission last Tuesday approved an amendment to the city's general plan to change the boundaries of the proposed Shoreline Regional Park.

The City Council must still make final approval.

A public hearing on the matter is tentatively scheduled Nov. 6.

This action sets the stage for a key Bay Conservation and Development Commission meeting Oct. 3 at San Francisco, in which that body will consider revising its Bay Plan to coincide with the new area agreed upon by the planning commission.

And in a related development, it was revealed that the BCDC had issued a cease and desist order against a trucking firm wanting to operate near the park that was apparently filling in a section of the bay.

The city's general plan proposes a large park at Oyster Point, extending from a point near the Bayshore Freeway and extending around Oyster Point south to Point San Bruno.

Originally proposed in 1962, the park incorporates extensive private land and a part of the bay that was then anticipated would be filled.

A NEED to re-evaluate the plan came about when Cabot, Cabot and Forbes requested a permit to develop DiSalvo Trucking Co. at the westernmost portion of the park.

That left the city with the decision to either buy the property or allow the development. However, acquisition was found not financially feasible, and as a result, the city decided to alter its design for the park.

Assuming the council adopts the planning commission's new park boundaries, the BCDC Bay Plan for the area would then differ with the general plan. The Bay Plan amendment is necessary for the development of the inland property slated for DiSalvo.

Although the city has scrapped the idea of buying the property, it is attempting to obtain from the waterfront property owners in the Oyster Point area a dedication of 100 feet paralleling the bay measured inland from the high tide line of 6.1 feet above the mean sea level.

The strip would extend along the waterfront from the U.S. Steel property on the western edge of Oyster Point, around to the Marina, and then southerly from the Marina about 2,500 feet.

HOWEVER, THE CITY'S hopes to acquire another 100 feet on the side of the Healey-Tibbitts property facing the bay was dimmed when that company's president, Richard Smith, said he didn't think the parent company would accept it.

CC&F has agreed to the easement, though it was indicated that the strip would not be 100 feet all the way around the properties. City Planner David Hale said the public access areas will be down to just 30 feet at some parts of the proposed DiSalvo property.

Some opposition to the development of DiSalvo has been reported by conservationists who object to a trucking firm being placed so close to the shoreline.

That objection could be heightened by the revelation that there was some bay fill going on at the DiSalvo site. BCDC was informed of the fill by a local resident.

Rodli Charges Prop. 9 Not Being Followed

Gilbert Rodli, challenging incumbent Democrat Louis Papan in the 19th Assembly District, has charged Papan of making an "empty promise" for allegedly promising to follow the Political Reform Act (Prop. 9). Rodli charged that Papan has twice violated provisions of the Act by sending out two newsletters at public expense.

St. Martin's Joins Royal School of Church Music

The choir of St. Martin's Episcopal Church, Daly City, has joined the Royal School of Church Music, and in doing so it becomes affiliated to a movement which has members in all parts of the English-speaking world, all of which are working for the same objective, the improvement of the music of church services.

Through affiliation the church will be able to make use of various benefits which are available for RSCM members.

The RSCM was founded in 1927 by Sir Sydney Nicholson, who gave up his post as organist of Westminster Abbey to devote his attention to the musical needs and problems of parish churches and to provide a center for training church musicians.

The headquarters of the RSCM are at Addington Palace, Croydon, England, just outside of London. The school now has a widespread influence and membership.

St. Martin's is in need of a grand piano. If anyone has one and would like to donate it to the church, contact the rector, the Rev. Timothy Rudolph, or the organist-choirmaster, James G. Martin, Jr. The church phone number is 756-6232.

Services are held each Sunday morning at 8 and 10 a.m. and on Wednesdays at 8 p.m.

Everyone is welcome.

New Latin Political Committee

The Latin-American Political Committee of the County of San Mateo was formed this past week at a meeting in Redwood City. Community leaders from throughout San Mateo County met to put the group together, elect a chairman and take their first official action.

Guillermo H. "Gil" Tovar was elected chairman at the meeting of Spanish-speaking peoples from Daly City to Menlo Park.

"We must help the Latin-American peoples of our county speak with a strong united voice so that they are justly represented in the halls of government," said Tovar.

"Our first action," he added, "is to endorse the re-election of Congressman Leo J. Ryan. I strongly urge all Latin-Americans to support Ryan." The committee voted unanimously to support Ryan and discussed other endorsements. Action on those endorsements is expected at the next committee meeting.

"Those interested in helping," said Tovar, "are invited to a dinner at the Silver Dollar Cafe in South San Francisco on Friday evening, Oct. 4."

Tickets for the Latin-American Political Committee fundraiser will be $5 each for a Mexican dinner. Congressman Ryan will be the guest speaker for the dinner at 8 p.m., no-host bar open from 7 p.m.

For tickets call Gil Tovar in San Carlos at 593-8637, Delia Casillas in Daly City at 755-0428 or Juan Diaz at the Silver Dollar, 589-0596.

Delegate Selection Underway

Democrats in the 11th Congressional District have begun to organize for the caucus at which they will select their delegates to the Charter Conference to be held in Kansas City, Mo. Dec. 6-8.

At a meeting held last week at Democratic Headquarters a steering committee was formed with Beth Labson and John Torres elected as co-chairpersons.

The main duty of the co-chairpersons and the Steering Committee is to inform registered Democrats within the 11th Congressional District on how they can become nominees to be delegates to this historic event.

The Charter Conference, or, as it is more formally known, the National Democratic Conference on Party Organization and Policy, will be held on Dec. 6, 7 and 8 in Kansas City. It is being convened to adopt the first constitution for the Democratic Party in its 200 year history.

The only requirements for running for election as a delegate are Democratic voter registration and residence in the Congressional District the candidate wishes to represent.

Nomination applications are available now through October 15th at San Mateo County Democratic Headquarters, 2191 El Camino Real, San Mateo, Calif. 94402, or any of the other attached locations.

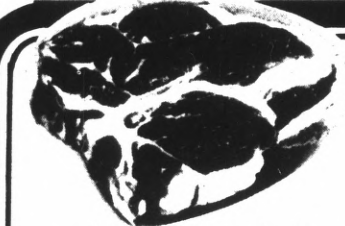

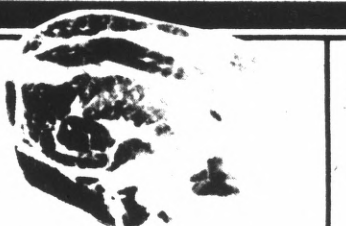

The steering committee also will hold a meeting at Democratic Headquarters in San Mateo, Oct. 17, at 8 p.m. All interested Democrats are invited.

Barbara Bladen

It's good to see old friends, show people who pass through on a short booking and invite you to come by and say "Hello," because you've taken an interest in their careers or because you admire them as people, whatever their talent.

Toni Lee Scott is back for four weeks at the Costa Brava lounge overlooking the Bayshore Freeway opposite Candlestick Park. I wish she had a stage, and a rhythm section behind her, some kind of a showcase where you can focus on the full impact of her singing. But just hearing her with a piano and the tinkle of drinks in the background is better than not hearing her incredibly moving interpretations of those ballads that tug hard at the heartstrings and tell you that heartbreak and heartache aren't easily forgotten.

We've known each other a long time through laughter and tears. She sang at my wedding and when we cry together over a sad song, we know without speaking what it's all about. When she's not working (which isn't often) she stays with her mother in Belmont. You're likely to catch her name on a Playboy Club marquee or in what are called "jazz" clubs in the big cities.

Not many white singers have the soul sound that Toni can produce by just letting her great joy of life (one she has almost lost nine times between crippling auto accidents and illness) surge up from her lungs and out through a smiling mouth that makes you want to hug someone near. Not that she sings happy tunes. It's the way she communicates lost that gives her her vocal power, not the tone or the volume.

I like a singer to make me feel good, to cry and laugh at the absurdities of life. Peggy Lee achieved it with her "Is That All There Is" and Dinah Washington did it with "Willow Weep For Me" and Sarah, Anita, Ella and Streisand all have that unique way of phrasing a line and shaping a lyric so that you've been touched deep down inside where music reaches and thrills.

Anyone who has read Toni's biography, "A Kind Of Loving," knows the kind of suffering she's endured, mostly from loving and trusting too much. Music has made her well, as it can all of us if we'd open our ears and our hearts to its message.

It was good to see the Pitschel Players back in town, even for so brief a time at the Boarding House last week. The satirists were a familiar fixture for five years when they did their tricks and jokes and funny material at the Intersection on Union Street. But they went to Los Angeles, as did The Committee once, and are finding favor with southland audiences that will keep them eating and working for awhile.

Only four months gone and they were back with a sharper, more polished show. And a fine new performer named Edie McClurg whose brother Bob McClurg is one of the original troupers under Ann Bowen's dedicated and devoted direction.

Former Terra Nova Students Are Honored

Ann Edminster and Linda Wharton, 1974 graduates of Terra Nova, are two of 163 incoming freshmen who have been granted "honors at entrance" by California Polytechnic State University in San Luis Obispo, which opened for classes Sept. 23.

To receive "honors at entrance" at Cal Poly, entering first-time freshmen must be among the top 5 per cent of the statewide class of high school seniors, based on their high school grades.

Le Pacini
Dario
Lodigiani

(First of two parts.)

Dario Lodigiani, the Chicago White Sox scout from North Beach, is one of those rare men who has been fortunate enough to have never worked at a job he didn't love.

"Outside of a few part-time winter things when I was playing ball, stuff just to keep in shape, I've never had a job outside of baseball," says the man who frolicked on Funston Field's diamonds with the DiMaggio brothers, played alongside Luke Appling in the White Sox infield, and worked for Casey Stengel.

Born in San Francisco, Lodigiani signed with the Oakland A's right out of Galileo High School in 1934. He immediately broke into the Coast League when it was a virtual third major league, and was sold to the Athletics in 1938. Traded to the White Sox in '41, he got in only one more season before World War II interrupted his career.

He served in the Army Air Corps for three years, mainly in the Pacific, and by the time he returned to the Sox in '46, he was 30 years old and rusty. In June of '47 he was hit on the right elbow by a pitched ball, which damaged his strong arm. He went back to Oakland, then managed by Casey Stengel, to finish the season out and try to get in shape for the next year.

In '48 he went to spring training with the Sox, but still couldn't throw well. He returned to Oakland, had his arm worked on, and threw well enough from third base to help Stengel win his '48 pennant, the one which got Casey to the Yankees.

Lodi never did get back to the majors, however, as he joined the Seals midway through the '49 season and then played for them through '52.

There followed a brief managerial career, first with Yakima in the Western International League, then to the California League with Ventura and Santa Barbara. After that it was scouting, and in his 41st year, it's still scouting.

MOST OF THE DIFFERENCES in baseball now and when Lodigiani played are obvious. When he broke in with Oakland, his salary was $125 a month and in his first year in the majors he made $4,000 ("You tell a kid nowadays about your hard times when you were starting, and he tells you, well things are different, now. And they got ya!").

There is also, of course, the dilution of major league quality because of the popular emergence of other pro sports and expansion. Lodigiani says that when he played in the Coast League in the '30s, several teams, especially the Seals and Los Angeles, would be challenging today's divisional leaders if the same players could be transported in time.

There is one subtle difference Lodigiani points out, though, in the quality of today's baseball which is seldom mentioned.

"When I was in school," he says, "I played all the sports in school, but on weekends I played baseball all year around. Now the athletes in high school are seasonal athletes. They just don't concentrate on baseball as much."

"That's why there are no real super stars anymore, guys like DiMaggio and Ted Williams, who thought about nothing else all year. With Clemente dead, Mays retired, and Aaron and Kaline at the end of their careers, we may have seen the last of the genuine super stars of baseball."

Joe D., says Lodigiani, was, "the greatest player of them all. It was his consistency which made him so great. And I'll tell you something about Joe which he rarely got credit for. He was one of the best baserunners in baseball. If he was on first and somebody doubled, he scored. Unless a guy hit a line drive right at the left fielder's feet, he always went from first to third on a single."

If he didn't play on a power hitting team like the Yankees, he would have stolen 50-60 bases a year. The only thing in baseball he couldn't do really well was slide. He always had strawberries. His rear was always skinned up.

"SPEAKING OF strawberries, they were the least of Joe's injuries. What was really amazing about him was that he did it all usually playing hurt. Most players nowadays don't know anything about playing hurt. They get a hangnail, you gotta wrap their arm up."

"In those days, we who were playing wouldn't get out of the lineup for anything. We had 22 man rosters, and if you weren't a super star, you'd better hang on to your regular spot in that lineup, because there was always an extra infielder on the club breathing down your neck, and probably three guys in the minors waiting behind him. Now, if you go, hurt, you know damned well that if HE got in there and started going good, you're not gonna play no more."

"I'm not saying that that system was necessarily good. There were some really good players who never got a proper chance to show what they could do. The classic example was Charley Silvera, a very good player who had the misfortune to be a catcher with the Yankees when they had Yogi Berra. In such cases, you had to resign yourself to the bench. Charley's compensation was those World Series checks he got every year."

"I'll tell you, there were so many excellent players who never even got out of the minors in those days, that it was an honor just to sit on a major league bench."

"Today in baseball they have a set club, and that's it. If a player goes out for a few days, he rarely has to worry about whether he'll make it back, because the man who takes his place just generally isn't of the calibre of the bench warmers when I played. And that's the main difference today. The athletes are bigger and stronger and quicker, and the first stringers are just as good as during any era of baseball but the talent is spread so thin that there are at least four or five players on every club who just wouldn't have been on a major league roster even just 15 years ago... hell, wouldn't have been good AAA players."

IF JOE DIMAGGIO was the greatest player Lodigiani ever saw, Mickey Mantle was the greatest who ever could have been, says Lodi, but for two factors.

"His legs and his high living hurt him. I've often wondered what he might have done even with his bad legs if he only would have ever gone to bed. Oh, God, he didn't let anything go by. He was another Babe Ruth, in all ways."

"When I was coaching for Kansas City, Mantle pulled one of the most fantastic feats in sports I've ever witnessed."

"In those days, we had a lot of ex-Yankee players. Even our manager, Hank Bauer, was an ex-Yankee. So naturally, Mickey knew a lot of the guys, and one night he came around to party, and at 3:30 a.m. he was still going, and I'll tell you, he was blind."

"Bauer didn't want Mickey to go back to his hotel and get in trouble with Ralph Houk, so he put him in another hotel, and tells me to pick Mick up at 6 a.m. the next morning, and take him back to the Yankee hotel, because this way, Houk isn't up."

"So the next morning I get Mick, and boy, I had to pull

San Mateo High football fans had eagerly awaited the unveiling of the Bearcats' one-two running punch—reputed to be the best since the glory days of the late 60s. Jeff Clarke was making his first varsity start at half-back, and, together with full-back Scott Tarleton, was supposed to wreak havoc on Westmoor Friday night at Burlingame Field.

Westmoor had other ideas, and completely outplayed San Mateo during the first half.

The Rams held a seemingly commanding 19-0 lead in the third quarter when the San Mateo punch finally started landing. The Bearcats won in the last two minutes, 20-19, but it wasn't easy.

San Mateo had gained just 29 yards in the first half, and made three first downs. The Bearcats fumbled. They accumulated penalties. Passes missed. Timing on pitchouts was off. And Westmoor kept swarming over the blackshirts.

Midway through the third quarter Clarke, Tarleton, quarterback Dave Savidge and the Cat line all got together on a six-play, 61-yard drive. Clarke, who'd gained 12 yards in the first half, got 37 on that drive, including the last 16 up the middle after a great fake by Savidge.

The San Mateo defense, which had been victimized repeatedly by Westmoor quarterback Harold Day, got down to business in the second half.

But the offense still had its problems. Fumbles and penalties still killed drives, though the Bearcats were making yardage.

Shortly before the end of the third quarter San Mateo's Dave Burton intercepted a Day pass and returned it to the Westmoor 20. The Bearcats immediately picked up a 15-yard penalty and lost 10 yards on a fumble.

But Clarke saved the day — and probably the game — on the next two plays. On third and 34 from the Westmoor 44, he carried for 16 yards and then, escorted by linemen Mike Sills, Mike Sutton and Jim Ratcliffe, rambled 28 yards on a sweep to score. He got spun by a forearm and went the last seven yards backwards.

Savidge passed to Barry Johnson on the conversion to close the gap to 19-14.

San Mateo got another fourth-quarter drive going, only to lose the ball on a fumble.

The defense stopped Westmoor on a fourth down play at the SM 29, with Mike Lee throwing Ram back Dan Tong for a loss.

But again San Mateo was unable to move, and then the Cats next got the ball, they had time for just one more try.

The try worked. Tarleton went outside behind key blocks by Clarke and Ratcliffe, and went 70 yards down the left sideline for the go-ahead TD with 1:21 remaining.

With 0:48 left, San Mateo's Donald Ford intercepted a desperation pass to ice the game.

Westmoor had pushed San Mateo around severely the first half. The Rams opened scoring when Day hit junior flanker Ken DeAlba on a 28-yard TD pass to culminate a 73-yard drive. Westmoor made it 12-0 at the half after a bad punt snap gave the Rams possession at the San Mateo six. Tong scored from a yard out.

Day struck once more in the third quarter after Ram linemen Frank Ahsue had blocked a San Mateo punt at the Bearcat 37. Day sprinted out and lofted a ball to DeAlba, who took it deep in the endzone corner behind two defenders.

HANG IN THERE

San Mateo High back Jeff Clarke tries to find the handle on a pitchout in game Friday night against Westmoor. Clarke held on, rushed for 119 yards and scored on two long runs as the Bearcats came from a 19-0 deficit to beat the upset-minded Rams 20-19.

Camino Attack 'Lively' in Win

By JERRY LITTELL

Post Correspondent

Only one criticism had been levied against El Camino High during the past several prep seasons — the Colts believed that to run a play outside tackle was akin to an attempt at violently overthrowing the government.

A lot of blasts, dives, powers with an occasional quick trap dotted the playbook. The Colts were efficient but bordered on boredom. If Friday night's win over the Burlingame Panthers is any indication of things to come, there appears to be a new life in Camino's offensive plans.

Taking advantage of Burlingame's continual penchant for handing the ball back on fumbles, the Colts registered a 14-6 win at Clifford Field handing the Panthers their first defeat of the '74 season. Camino is now also 2-1.

True, the Colts didn't exactly explode on offense, but indications were there. Not just one but two half-backs threw an option pass. Even a sweep or two leaked out of the backfield. It was rejuvenating.

But, even Friday night, it was the Camino defense that won the game. Slamming into the Burlingame backfield, the Colts forced eight fumbles and picked up five of them, one for their first score of the evening.

Burlingame marched 90 yards on its opening series to take a 6-0 lead when soph back Byron Hawkins had clear sailing on an option rollout from the seven. It was the final thrust for the Panthers, however, as they were to fumble the next five times they touched the ball.

Camino picked up one fumble on the 10 but in four plays managed to get down to the six. Burlingame took over and ran two plays before Hawkins had the ball pop loose on the seven. Tackle Dean Triggas lumbered in for the tying score and Gary Ottonello's PAT kick gave the Colts the winning point.

Hawkins again fumbled on the first play of the second half and had another misery added on the next series when he dropped another handoff to set up the final score for Camino.

Halfback Mike Evans, whom coach Tom McCormick has labeled the "best back he has coached," ended a 28-yard march with a one-yard Sam Cunningham leap and dive to end the scoring.

Burlingame did get back the services of quarterback Larry Weinberg, who was a ball-handling wizard. Unfortunately, his backs often were mystified also.

Burlingame didn't have a great deal of success passing, hitting on just three of 12 attempts for 22 yards. The Panthers outgained the Colts, 176-165, on the ground. Hawkins got 129 of those yards.

Burlingame.....6 0 0 0-6
El Camino.....0 7 7 0-14
Scoring: B — Hawkins, 7 run (run failed); EC — Triggas, 7 fumble recovery (Ottonello kick); Evans, 1 run (Ottonello kick).

Serra Wins Cross-Country

Serra High's cross country team retained its perfect record Friday by beating Westmoor and Aragon in a non-league matchup on the three-mile Crystal Springs course.

Serra scored 21 to Westmoor's 39 and Aragon's 71. The Padres are now 7-0.

Serra senior Gerry Harnett finished first in 15:55, a Padre course record.

In other non-league action, Half Moon Bay ran its record to 4-1 (the only loss came Tuesday to Serra) by beating Crestmoor, 17-46.

HMB's Rick Hill went 9:50.7 in a school record.

Colts a Mild Favorite

By CHRIS STAVE
Post Correspondent

THE NORTH Peninsula League football season starts Friday, and according to highly scientific calculation, El Camino, which has lost only to Capuchino in the practice season, ranks as a mild favorite — if only because the Colts are defending champions, and have players returning.

South San Francisco, which has beaten only Capuchino in a tougher practice season, should be the top challenger. Terra Nova has yet to win a game, but the Tigers are solid and could be rated as the dark horse.

Predicted order of finish for the rest: Westmoor, Serramonte, Oceana, Half Moon Bay, Jefferson.

IT COULD BE a banner year for fringe hopefuls in the Mid-Peninsula League, which begins play a week from Friday.

Hillsdale is not likely to be the dominating power it was — the Knights have already had some strange practice games, not the least of which was last Friday's 62-36 loss to Sylvine of Oakland.

Capuchino has quarterback Ralph Costanzo, but the offense has been somewhat limited in scope so far, and still lacks the punch of last year's co-champion team.

San Mateo is supposed to have the horses, but the Bearcats hardly seemed to have things together in a 20-19 comeback win over Westmoor, a win they owed partly to luck — Westmoor, leading 19-14 in the waning moments, chose to punt on second down when quarterback Harold Day was knocked out of the game for a play. San Mateo scored shortly afterward on a 70-yard run with 1:21 remaining.

There are at least two teams that have a shot at beating one or more of the top three — Burlingame and Aragon.

Burlingame coach Bob Booker has once again fashioned something solid out of what seemed to be a woefully inexperienced group.

Aragon has one of the best records around (3-0), and it matters not a whit to coach Dick Breaux that the Dons fattened up on a weak practice schedule. Momentum is momentum, he figures. He has nothing against going into the league season undefeated.

In short, the MPL title is up for grabs.

him outa bed. Finally, I got him dressed, got him in the car, and drove him to his hotel.

"That afternoon, Mantle didn't take batting practice, nothing. He was walking around groaning, 'ohhh, ohhhh.'"

"But Houk starts him, anyway. We've got Bob Shaw pitching, and the first time up, Mantle hits one clean out of the park. Next time up, he hits one three-quarters of the way up the message board in center field."

"They were leading us by quite a few runs early, so Houk takes Mickey out in the six or seventh, and Mickey still had an awful hangover!"

(Concluded next week.)

FORMER SSF all-around star Brad Brian, who went on to become MVP of the 1974 University of California baseball team, is now ensconced in Cambridge, Mass., in his first year at Harvard Law School.

Brian had one brief — and successful — experience with football at Cal. He walked unbidden onto the practice field as a freshman and wound up being voted team captain; he set a frosh passing record as quarterback.

His best sport was baseball. He was on the U.S. team for the 1972 World Championships in Nicaragua and also an All-Pac-8 first team selection.

He didn't fit the jock image, though; he graduated with a 3.85 out of a possible 4.0 grade point average.

THE INJURY to star Carlmont running back Bill Ring could have been worse. Ring, who had established two SPAL rushing records the week before, left the Scots' rout of Ravenswood Friday in the first quarter. The immediate diagnosis was a shoulder separation, and the immediate reaction was gloom.

But reserve back Brent Nance went on to score six touchdowns in the 60-0 scorefest, and word came later from coach Ron Sweet that Ring would only be out two or three weeks.

He suffered a first degree minor separation of his left shoulder, said Sweet, and should be out running (with no contact) next week.

ATHLETE OF THE WEEK is Serra High's senior quarterback Jim Freitas, who completed 15 of 21 passes for 203 yards and four touchdowns in the Padres' 33-6 win over Terra Nova. Perhaps Freitas, like O. J. Simpson, might want to share credit with his offensive line — he's only been sacked three times in 13 varsity games.

Swim Club Makes Fine Showing

The North Peninsula Swim Club, continuing its progress as a team, made a fine showing at the surfers' "B" swim meet recently at Crestmoor High School.

Leading the team was Gina Marcelli, taking a second place in the eight years and under 25 yard backstroke, a third in the eight and under 25 yard freestyle.

Cathy Twentyman took a fourth place in the 10 years and under 50 yard breaststroke. Anita Ruiz took an eighth place in the 10 and under 50 yard butterfly.

North Peninsula sponsored a rare event in swimming, a relay team composed entirely of the members of one family.

The Ruiz children Martin,

13, Anita, 10 and twins Joe and Jodi, 9, swam in the 41 years and under relay in which four swimmers (two boys and two girls) of any age may be entered as long as their combined ages are less than the prescribed number. The Ruiz children have been members of the club since its inception, but this is the first time they have swum as a team.

The North Peninsula Swim Club still has openings for swimmers six years of age and older who can swim 25 yards crawl stroke.

The team practices from 5 p.m. - 7 p.m. at the South San Francisco High School pool.

CSM Defense Glitters

By FRED BAER
Post Correspondent

Cashing in on its second straight show of defensive prowess, College of San Mateo grabbed a share of the Golden Gate Conference lead Saturday with a 17-2 win over visiting Foothill.

CSM is now 2-1 over-all and 1-0 on the season, and although the offense hasn't been impressive, the Bulldogs haven't really been threatened since their opening loss at Bakersfield.

CSM lost two of four fumbles in the first quarter. But Foothill was stopped on fourth down at the seven (by Ray Barrow) and again at the ten (as Burlingame grad Paul Kolesnikow blocked a field goal try).

Later in the quarter Bulldog Kevin McCoy's punt was blocked, and Howard Avila tried to run it out of the end zone. He was tackled for a safety.

Those proved to be the only Owl points — but for a while it looked like they might be enough.

Finally, with just 1:20 left in the half, the Bulldogs took over on their own 36 following a punt. Quarterback Rudy Castellanos completed three passes and CSM was in scoring position on the Foothill 17 with 25 seconds left.

With no time outs remaining, San Mateo coach Steve Shafer brought in veteran kicking star Steve LaPlant, who responded with a 34-yard field goal to put the hosts on top for good at 3-2.

Shafer called that drive "the best football we've played this season."

Frosh stinger Jeff Hansen from San Carlos recovered a third-quarter fumble on the Owl 20 to set-up the first TD. Soph tailback Larry Backstrom reached paydirt from ten yards out, taking a pitch from Castellanos.

CSM started off the fourth quarter with the only complete drive of the game, marching 82 yards in 11 plays (plus two penalties). The capper was a 35-yard play with Avila taking a short Castellanos pass, sidestepping a tackler after catching the ball and another just before crossing the goal.

Foothill drove into CSM territory only twice — but, in turn, lost the ball on a fumble to Barry Hyde and an interception by Kolesnikow.

The win was costly for the Bulldogs injury-wise. All-GGC linebacker Rick Parham received a knee injury similar to the one which put him out at the end of last season. Two other veteran starters were hurt, linebacker Paul Brandon (shoulder) and DB Bill Popin — but both are expected back for Saturday night's game at Diablo Valley.

Castellanos had his best passing day of the season, completing 11 of 18 for 151 yards — with Bill Fass the receiving leader as usual, with four. No Bulldog running back got over 40 yards.

Aragon Nears Goal

Aragon High football coach Dick Breaux's preseason goal was to get into the Capuchino game — the fifth of the season — undefeated.

Although many may not have believed him at the start of the season, the Dons are now just one win away from that goal.

Aragon completed a three-game sweep of its practice schedule Friday at Hillsdale with a 7-6 win over Oceana.

Aragon, which could muster only 136 yards total offense against the Sharks, scored its lone touchdown midway through the third quarter on a 10-play, 49-yard drive.

Junior tight end Wayne Bergland caught a five-yard scoring pass from Jim Chakos to cap the march, which was sparked by the running of fullback Kevin Stevenson. Bob Northey kicked what proved to be the winning point.

Oceana rolled to its score in the second quarter on the passing of Lenny Sacchez. Sanchez took the Sharks 37 yards in six plays following a fumble recovery, and hit Robert Clay with a seven-yard scoring pass.

Sanchez was able to exploit an injury-riddled Aragon secondary all day, completing eight of 14 for 171 yards.

The Dons, however, picked off three of Sanchez's passes, including two in the last quarter. Jeff Hart, who had saved a touchdown for Aragon with an interception earlier, iced the game with another steal at Oceana's 29 with little time remaining.

Aragon's defense, which has given up only 12 points in three games, held Oceana to 50 yards rushing on 31 tries. Shark speed back Calvin Ellison got only 36 yards on 14 carries.

Plant Early for Strawberries

By IVA NEWMAN
Strawberry growers tell us that it is absolutely vital to plant early if a decent crop from maiden plants are to be obtained the following year. These professionals maintain that July and August are the best months but if October stays warm the plants can still get off to a good start.

The problem here is getting the plants as most nurseries stock the young strawberry plants in spring. However, we have called around and found that several of the nurseries still have some desirable plants in stock. When plants are set out in spring they should be deblossomed the first year. Maiden plants give the earliest and best quality fruits, but to try and take a first year crop from a spring planting is most likely to depress the crop in following years.

The planting site is important. It should be in an open, sunny situation and not shaded. A site that faces south will yield earlier strawberries. While it would be to the growers advantage not to plant in a frost pocket, the grower should remember that strawberries flower over a long time and it is usually only the first flowers that get burned.

Soil is next in importance. Strawberries can be grown without replanting for four years, although most professional growers rip them out and replant after the third year. Some growers specializing in early, high quality fruits plant every year. It is important, therefore, that the initial soil preparation be thorough.

Apply plenty of well rotted manure or compost at the rate of about three bushel baskets full to about 27 square feet of bed and dig it in so that the roots will not come in contact with large pieces of the material. We used our own compost after it had been put through a shredder. After this was well mixed in we raked the top three or four inches off and spread a balanced slow-release fertilizer and raked it into this lower section of prepared soil before we raked the top portion back into place. We used approximately three to four ounces of the fertilizer per square yard. If course or bulky organics are left on the surface, they make good hiding and nesting places for slugs and snails.

Moist Soil
The soil should be moist before planting. Set the plants with the crown of the strawberry just level with the soil surface. Too deep a planting may result in the rotting of the bud during the winter rains and too shallow a planting may cause the drying out of the roots. Plant with a trowel spreading the roots out well. Pull the soil back over the roots and firm it down well, and water in.

If the strawberries are to be left in for a full three years or possibly four, the plants should be spaced 14 to 16 inches apart in the row with the rows spaced three feet apart. We have ours in a single row at the top of a three-foot retaining wall. The plants were set a foot back from the wall and in one year's time runners have made this planting into a matted row about 18 inches wide. Next summer or fall we plan to thin the plants out and start a second planting.

Most books on strawberries tell us to water when drought conditions occur during the growing season. With our long, dry season we found we needed to water about twice a week until the berries started ripening. If one is too generous with the water when the fruit is ripening there is danger of them moulding. We use a water wand which we place under the foliage at the upper end of the row and let it slowly creep down the full length of the row. If for some reason water becomes limited, the plants respond best to watering just before the flowers open. If overhead watering is used, do it in the morning so the plants are dry by nightfall.

Strawing Down
The purpose of strawing down is to keep the berries clear of the ground and therefore clean and soil free. Straw has been used for generations. In fact we have read in several places that the wide use of straw in mulching strawberries gave these berries their name. Straw is easy to handle, not too difficult to obtain (it is usually available at farm supply stores), and it allows the air to circulate under the fruit. Barley straw, which is soft, is preferred but wheat straw does very well.

The time to apply the straw is important. Straw when the fruits begin to swell and touch the earth. Tuck the straw right under the berries and fill in over the soil between the rows to help keep the weeds down and the soil shaded. There are other materials that can be used such as black polyethylene or even two or three thicknesses of newspaper, but straw is really the best.

Unfortunately, in this area, it is necessary to cover the plants with netting to prevent the birds from beating you to berries. We prefer a plastic netting with three quarter to one-inch holes. This is held well above the plants by a light wooden frame made of garden stakes. The sides and ends are held down with stones. One friend built a cage, to cover his berries, that was four feet high so he could pick in reasonable comfort. Another friend edged her strawberry bed with two by twelves over which she put wire covered frames. We just lay our plastic back until we get the berries picked then we pull it back over the plants again.

Along about the first of September when most of the berries have been harvested, the old leaves and unwanted runners are clipped off to three inches above the crown. Everbearing or remontants are not defoliated, just tidied up by removing some of the old leaves. Often these plants will set berries after this operation.

Man With A Mission

Without meaning to, Terry Ledel, 27, of 463 Loma Vista Terrace, Pacifica, has become a man with a mission.

He wants to create an artificial reef about a hundred yards off shore on San Pedro Beach in Pacifica. This would increase sea life and improve the beach, he believes.

His biggest obstacle, however, is not the elements. It is the bureaucracy that was set up to safeguard the beaches.

A few weeks ago, his main concern was how to gather old tires to use to build the reef and barge them seaward. Now he asks a hearing before the Pacifica Parks, Beaches and Recreation Commission, and is conferring with staff members of the Coastal Conservation Commission, the Army Corps of Engineers and the State Lands Commission for the necessary permits.

Monday night, he approached the Pacifica City Council for its backing. He explained that although the city did not have actual jurisdiction over the San Pedro Bay waters, other bodies which do look to the city for guidance.

Councilman Stan Farber asked if the Coastal Conservation Commission could give conceptual approval, before Ledel went through all the processes of seeking permits.

"No," replied Councilwoman Grace McCarthy, who is a CCC director. She said Ledel must obtain all his local approvals first. The council, on Councilman Sid Lorvan's motion, referred the matter to the Parks, Beaches and Recreation Commission "to see how it would fit in with their other beach plans."

Ledel has been surfing and fishing off Pacifica's beaches 22 years. He first heard of the artificial reefs being installed in Southern California, and has studied them intensely, he says.
